Georgia Association of Convenience Stores Member Gives Back

McDonald Oil/Summit Stores Raises over $31,000 for MDA

Dallas, GA--- Georgia Association of Convenience Stores member McDonald Oil/Summit Stores raised more than $31,000 for MDA families during their 10th Annual Golf Classic. The money raised will benefit the children and adults affected by muscle disease in the La Grange area.

“We are thrilled to acknowledge our members and the work they do to give back to their communities.” said Angela Holland, Vice President, Association Services. “It is important to not only give back during the holiday season, but throughout the entire year. We look forward to serving the communities where our stores operate in 2016.”

The money raised by McDonald Oil/Summit Stores helps provide services to patients with muscle diseases. It helps them with flu shots, a summer camp for children ages 6-17, equipment maintenance and support groups. The program also helps to support

MDA's worldwide research program and national network of 200 medical clinics, including the MDA clinic at Emory and Scottish Rite in Atlanta, GA. To learn more about the McDonald Oil Company/Summit Stores and their community efforts, please visit www.mcdonaldoil.com

The Georgia Association of Convenience Stores (GACS) was founded in 1973 by convenience store owners and operators across the state to create a stronger voice within the Georgia General Assembly. GACS advances the business success of its members and the convenience store industry through advocacy, knowledge and services. To learn more, please visit www.gacs.com
